

A CALL FOR BOOK REVIEWS

The Association for Aviation Psychology is soliciting reviews of books contributing to the field of aviation psychology and related aerospace disciplines. Reviews will be published in the AAP Newsletter.

Book Review Guidelines

The intention of the book reviews are to provide for the Association's readership a summary of current and emerging work in the field. Book reviews should be fair, informative, and succinct.

Format

Please submit all reviews in electronic format via email to the Newsletter Editor. The preferred file format is Word, and please do not password-protect.

Review Content

Header:

- Title of the book
- Author(s) or editor(s) first and last names
- Year of publication
- Place of publication
- Publisher
- ISBN
- Retail price

Body of the review:

- Introduction to the author
- Summary of the intended audience and purpose of the book
- Main ideas or objectives of the book, as well as what the work contributes to the field
- Critical review of the approach the author takes to the topic
- Comparison with existing similar work in the field
- Evaluation of the book's merits and contributions, as well as any shortcomings

Reviewer biography:

- Your name and title(s) as you would want them to appear
- A brief two-sentence biographical note about yourself

Length

Please limit your review to no more than 500 words. If you believe the review warrants more length, please contact the Newsletter Editor.

Things to Avoid

- Do not submit a chapter-by-chapter, section-by-section summary, but instead summarize the major areas or topics covered.
- Do not compare the book itself with others, but instead review the contribution of the work on its own merit and in the context of the body of literature.
- Do not infuse the review with your own opinions on the topic, but instead review the author's or editor's approach to the topic. If you want to share your knowledge and opinion, please consider writing an article for the newsletter.
- Do not review work to which you have contributed as an author, or present as any other potential conflict of interest.

Submitting your Review

Send your completed review to:

Newsletter Editor

Email: AAP.newseditor@gmail.com

Note: If your review is submitted after a posted deadline, it will be considered for publication in a subsequent newsletter.